

skirt! national

skirt! charlotte

choose another skirt!

search skirt!

GO

skirt!
charlotte

CREATE AN ACCOUNT OR LOG IN

- Log In
- Register
- Archives

choose another skirt!

other locations

something to enjoy 3 days

deals and delights

skirt! books

An advice-from-the-trenches cancer survival guidebook for young women with cancer. ...

Read More >

Home

she's so skirt!

Meghann Gunderman, activist

Researching her college thesis in an orphanage in northern Tanzania changed her forever. Now, At 24, Meghann is changing lives. "I was moved to act," Meghann says. "Fifty percent of the Tanzanian population is under 15 years old. Over a million of those kids are orphaned." While still in college, Meghann raised tens of thousands of dollars to improve the orphanage's facilities and the lives of the children that so touched her heart—but felt her part-time effort wasn't enough. Finally, last November, Meghann left her promising finance career to devote herself full-time to the children, with the creation of The Foundation for Tomorrow, a nonprofit that provides scholarships for orphaned children to attend boarding school in their home country. "We're taking on these children as the responsibility of the entire world," says Meghann, now executive director of the foundation. "I look at each of them as if they are my own children."

By Deborah Triplett

LOGIN OR REGISTER TO POST COMMENTS

CLICK HERE TO CHAT

skirt! Sponsors

Advertisement

PMS (Problems Men Started)
by Nikki Hardin and Caitlin McPhillips

“It’s your story...make it a page-turner.”

Nikki Hardin,
skirt! publisher

skirt! books

“It’s your story...make it a page-turner.”

Nikki Hardin, skirt! publisher

PMS (Problems Men Started) by Nikki Hardin and Caitlin McPhillips

skirt! books